

DISCOVERING NEW WAYS TO HELP TREAT CANINE LYMPHOMA

Help us improve the lives of our canine patients diagnosed with lymphoma. A new clinical trial for dogs with untreated lymphoma coordinated by Iowa State University is now enrolling. Dogs with peripheral lymph node lymphoma are eligible to enroll in a new study to evaluate the benefit of corticosteroids. To be eligible to participate in the trial, a lymphoma diagnosis has to be confirmed or must be highly suspected and chemotherapy treatment declined. Eligible dogs cannot have received any steroids before enrollment. The study provides FREE palliative prednisone. Your Oncology Specialist is now accepting patients for this new study.
